Expenses of recall campaign

ALBANY — Three Oakland and San Francisco-based labor organizations were the biggest spenders in the November recall election, together providing more than $2,500 in cash and non-monetary contributions to oppose the recall of three council members.

Official campaign statements tabulated this week indicate that close to $7,000 total was spent by both sides.

The Albany Recall Committee received about $3,000 in cash and non-monetary contributions and spent about $2,995, according to a statement filed by Committee Treasurer Bernard Johnson.

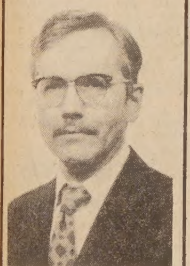

The Committee for Responsible Government, which opposed the recall effort, received about $6,500 in cash and non-monetary assistance and spent about $3,750, according to a statement filed by Committee Treasurer Dario Meniketti.

The election resulted in the recall of Councilmen Mike Gleason and Pat Griffin, but Mayor Joyce Jackson received enough "no" votes to avoid recall.

The largest campaign contributors were the Alameda County AFL-CIO Committee on Political

Water rationing comes to a 'qualified end'

ALBANY — This first day of February will live long in the memories of Albany residents as the day East Bay Municipal Water District lifted its water rationing allotments. But EBMUD directors apparently have no intention of allowing joy or water to flow unrestrained. "We strongly encourage the continued voluntary conservation of water, and a number of modified drought regulations will discourage wasteful use," officials warned.

Dramatic improvement in the East Bay's water supply from the heavy storms in recent weeks made possible the end of rationing, according to EBMUD General Manager John S. Harnett.

"There is already enough snow in the mountains above the Mokelumne River to fill Pardee Reservoir this spring when it melts," Harnett said.

In the last month, Pardee has gained about 25 percent of its capacity from rain run-off alone. The Sierra snow pack is currently almost double its normal depth at this time of year, and precipitation in the Mokelumne basin is running about 68 percent ahead of normal.

Harnett said that with minimal precipitation during the remainder of the wet season, the run-off from the snow that is presently on the ground will leave the East Bay with more than a year's supply of water at the end of 1978, even at a normal level of water consumption.

"At a ration level of a 35 percent reduction, we now have in our reservoirs nearly 600 days worth of water," the general manager observed. "At a pre-drought level of use, there is about 400 days worth in the reservoirs now, even before the spring run-off."

Although EBMUD customers no longer will face water allotments, the board of directors voted to keep in effect a strong voluntary water conservation program.

"The drought has taught us that there is never enough water to waste," Harnett said. "We hope that East Bay water users will continue to use water efficiently for, wasteful

Proposal may go on ballot

ALBANY — The Albany City Council is considering an April 11 ballot proposal which would levy an additional eight- or nine-cent override tax "one time only" and citywide, enabling the city to purchase the Tevlin one-acre parcel for open space.

The parcel, which owner John Hattam would like to develop into multiple residential units, has been a source of controversy since Tevlin residents called for city acquisition of the area.

The council Monday night instructed City Administrator Bill Haden to prepare a detailed proposal based upon earlier discussion, to be reviewed next Monday.

The citywide override tax was suggested by Tevlin resident Bonnie Ciedel after she admitted that her neighbors opposed an earlier plan for an assessment

Standby generator for city

ALBANY — Noting that the city's emergency power generator was recently "down" for three days, Albany City Council members have approved additional precautionary measures.

Vice Mayor Lewis Howell Monday night said that the city's police department and other agencies could be without lights and communication if there were a regular power failure at the same time as the emergency generator is not working.

For example, an explosion like last week's industrial plant mishap could create a power shortage affecting city government, he said.

Fire Chief Mike Koepeke explained that there are already regular procedures for remedying a failure

2 changes in meeting dates

ALBANY — A meeting of the Albany City Council scheduled Feb. 13 has been cancelled "because of Lincoln's Birthday holiday," and the special election on the following day, Patricia Dempster, city clerk, announced this morning.

The council session of Feb. 20, which falls on the Washington Birthday holiday, has been advanced to Feb. 21.

Next Monday's session will be held at its regularly scheduled time — 8 p.m. in the council chambers of the City Hall.

Lighthouse grant plans reviewed by AUSD board

ALBANY — Programs to be financed with the $20,000 "Lighthouse Grant" award recently to the Albany High School were discussed at a recent meeting of the Albany Unified School District's board of trustees.

The grant was one of 46 made under Assembly Bill 65, a measure aimed at involving parents, students and teachers in evaluating and improving curriculum.

Christine McKnight, chairman of the School Site Committee, had commented previously that "Albany's experience with the Early Childhood Education program has shown that we can get parent-teacher cooperation and that there is a minimum of conflict between teachers and administrators."

"This year's grant will be used," she said, "to try to figure out what we want to do next year at Albany High. A major area of concern among parents is their desire to improve the career training - vocational education program."

"I would also like to see an improved self-image, particularly among girls," Mrs. McKnight concluded.

Although Albany's cotton production never has set any agricultural records, an Albany resident will be one of the principal speakers at a seminar on insects threatening the fiber crop.

Dr. Andrew Gutierrez, of the University of California, will discuss critical insect-related issues facing the cotton industry. The three-day symposium — the first of its type — will open in Orlando, Florida Tuesday.

"It is described as a 'no-holds barred' participation seminar," Dr. Gutierrez said, "in which we'll explore and hopefully reach conclusions on a number of critical, insect-related issues facing the growers."

In essence, the experts intend to make it very risky for any pest to go bolling.

Some two-dozen Albany Rotarians and their guests made the 36th Annual Pilgrimage to Reno, January 23, for the Inter-City meet — a contingent that maintained the local club's record for the highest percentage attendance.

"But if they set any records at the tables, they're keeping it a secret," Rotarian Hal Denham sighed. "However," he added, "we did hear that one of our group broke the dollar-machine bank at the El Dorado Hotel, but his name is a trade-secret."

Albany President Dick Janese headed the Albany sojourners who boarded the 20-car train in Oakland, Jan. 22, accompanied by some 700 fellow-Rotarians in the Bay Area. With the Albany contingent were: Jerry Blank, Chuck Silvera and guest, Bud Read and guest, Jim Quick, Jack Clarkson and son Mark, Chuck Holland, Glen Hertzberg, Bill Johns, Dave Nichols and father, Bob Bacigalupi, Hal Denham and son Kayo, Tony Montano, J. J. Sturgeon, Joe Dagna, March Diehl and guest, Bernie Johnson, Bob Olson, Bill Rothschild and guests, Jim Simmons, Mike Koepke, and Ed Elliott.

The Rotarians returned Monday evening and, at last report, were resting quietly.

Karin Richmond, one of 12 students who will be graduated from Albany High School at mid-semester, revealed recently that she has received an offer to do a song-and-dance routine in Las Vegas. Statisticians estimate this would drop the unemployment rate of the January Class of '78 to 91.5 percent.

While the job status of the entire class has not been published by "The Informer," the AHS newspaper listed 11 additional mid-term graduates — Paul Axelson, John Baker, Pamela Criss, Jim Ganong, Kim Garth, Anushiravan Forouhar, Kamyab Hashemi-Nejad, Brian Hutton, Gary London, Carmen Mouton, and Kelley Simons.

RECALL FUNDS

(Continued from Page 1) the Recall Committee to Education (COPE), the Alameda County Central Labor Council, both headquartered in Oakland, and the Operating Engineers Local No. 3, located in San Francisco. All of them opposed the recall.

COPE contributed twice to the anti-recall effort, including $968 worth of mailing and telephone service and $500 in cash.

The Central Labor Council contributed $800 worth of printing and mailing. The operating engineers contributed $81 worth of printing and later $200 worth of printing.

Other contributions for the Citizens for Responsible Government included a $532 loan by Irene Petrel.

Contributors included Dr. Richard Gleason, $200; Polly Gleason, $143; Booker Jackson, $100; Harry Styron, $142; Charles Duffy, $50 and Walter Koop, $50.

Contributions under $50 are not recorded in the official statements under the law.

Contributions over $50 to the Citizens for Responsible Government campaign totaled about $4,000 of the $6,650 total receipts.

TEVLIN OVERRIDE TAX

GRANT

(Continued from Page 1) district which would involve only homeowners near the Tevlin parcel. The override tax would probably raise from $50,000 to $60,000 for the Tevlin purchase. A majority vote is needed for passage. Voter approval of the override tax also involves the other aspects of the Tevlin financing, including diversion of funds from development of the Middle School Park development and elimination of the city's proposed tree planting program for Stannage and Kains Avenues. The entire Tevlin purchase, according to City Administrator Haden could cost from $150,000 to $220,000, through city condemnation proceedings. Responding to a council request for figures, Haden outlined a method under which $153,000 would be diverted from the Middle School Park development, in the form of federal revenue-sharing funds.

In place of the $153,000, the park development could instead get $114,000 taken from federal Housing and Community Development funds, which has included the tree planting project. Haden said this could provide 75 percent of the funding needed for the entire $300,000 Middle School Park development project instead of the 90 percent originally allocated. Whatever is done, the park development would also receive additional funding from other sources. If approved by the voters, April 11, the eight-to-nine-cent override tax would raise funds which would be added to the $153,000 diverted from Middle School Park development, although it is not certain that the total would be adequate to purchase Tevlin. There would be another $20,000 in expenses, raising the potential acquisition costs from a low of $170,000 to a high of $260,000. With $153,000 coming from the park development, the city must raise from $16,000 to $106,000 more to purchase the parcel, depending on the outcome of the condemnation suit. Revenue from the eight-to-nine-cent tax rate would be a happy medium between the low and high figures estimated as the city's need above the $153,000 diverted from the park development. During the meeting, letters opposing diversion of funds from the Middle School Park development to Tevlin were read, coming from the City Park and Recreation Commission and the Marin School PTA. Another letter opposing diversion of the $114,000 from HCD projects such as the tree planting to Middle School Park development was also read, as submitted by the City Housing and Community Development Committee. It was estimated that an override tax raising from $50,000 to $60,000 for one year only would cost the owner of a $40,000 market-value home about $7.

(Continued from Page 1) the calendar year 1978 probably will be followed by implementation grants for successive years, James Walker, AHS principal, added. The trustees also heard a report on the "K-12 Writing Curriculum" presented by Linda Schwimmer, English instructor who recently was placed on special assignment to work with teachers as a writing consultant and to establish a writing curriculum. Ms. Schwimmer had commented, prior to the board meeting, that "what is needed is a system that requires the students to write and write and write. And a system in which the students and teachers discuss, criticize and revise each others writing. In a final action, the trustees approved a plan which will permit joint purchase of school supplies with the Richmond Unified School District. "The larger volume purchasing will enable us to qualify for greater discounts," John Fike AUSD Business Administrator, said.

(Continued from Page 1) lured of the emergency generator. But a series of miscues caused the three-day delay in fixing the emergency unit, he said. The staff was instructed to place a sign on the generator, reminding staff to contact the nearby firm which sold it to the city. In other business, the council: —Was told by City Clerk Patricia Dempster that three city council candidates have no occupations listed on the Feb. 14 ballot because the candidates failed to list their occupations on the filing papers. The matter was raised by attorney Louis Bell who asked "Whose goof is this?" —Voted 2-1 to deny a request for tax exempt status for the League of American Veterans which plans to solicit within the city limits. Dissenter was Mayor Joyce Jackson who wanted more information. —Approved transferring CETA employees to the state workers compensation program, reducing the cost of the city's self-insurance program and saving on premiums without reducing the workers' coverage.

ALBANY — State tax payments allocated to Albany for the month of January totaled $32,108, State Controller Kenneth Cory reported today. The city received $16,153 in "in-lieu" motor vehicle fees, $99 in off-highway fees, $11,952 in highway users taxes and $3,904 in cigarette taxes. For the same period Alameda County received $91,650 of "in-lieu" motor vehicle fees, $5,623 in off-highway taxes, $679,236 in highway users' taxes and $41,654 in cigarette taxes — a total of $1,638,163. Payments to all counties and cities for the period were $35,296,933, $217,729, $67,015,696, and $6,790,428 respectively. The "in-lieu" motor vehicle allocations represent the cities and counties share of license fees and other revenues deposited in the Motor Vehicle License Fee account during December of 1977. (The state excise tax at the rate of $2 per $100 of market value takes the place of local property tax on motor vehicles.) The off-highway revenues derive from a $4 fee charged for issuance or renewal of identification of those off-highway vehicles designated by law for such identification. Highway users' taxes are derived primarily from gasoline and diesel fuel taxes during December of 1977.

WATER RATIONING

(Continued from Page 1) and negligent misuse still is unacceptable. The modified drought regulations retained by EBMUD discourage any use of water which results in waste or excessive runoff from garden irrigation or pavement cleaning. Water can be used for construction compaction only if alternative, economically feasible sources are not available. Until further review, EBMUD also will continue to not accept new applications for annexations of areas outside the boundaries of the utility district to its service area. The EBMUD board at its meeting deferred action on a proposed water rate increase to its next regular meeting on February 14. Also assured of adequate water this summer were 500 Reclamation water users who were told by the Department of Interior this week that they would have "a full supply for irrigated crops for the 1978 season." Billy E. Martin, regional director or the Reclamation Bureau said that all California Valley Project contractors "will be guaranteed a 100 percent supply" and added that "we have revised upward our 1978 Delta water quality objective. The important Rock Slough (Contra Costa County Water District intake) criteria is now targeted at 250 milligrams per liter of chlorides. This is equal to our 1976 water quality objective level." Bureau operating engineers said if reservoirs throughout northern and central California had not been low because of drought operations, the sudden, near record levels of precipitation during late December and January probably would have caused serious flood problems.

Athlete of the Week

Albany High School's "Athlete of the Week" is Nancy Gaines, a senior who recently scored 17 points to lead Albany cagers to a 31-30 victory over San Leandro.

Nancy, also a member of the volleyball and track teams, does not limit herself to athletic competition, however. She has been named to the California Scholastic Federation, and has served as a staffer on the AHS Yearbook and the Rally Committee.

"Recently she was accepted at UC," a school spokesman said, "but she hasn't made up her mind, as yet, where she wants to go to school."

3 areas allow night hunting with lights

SACRAMENTO — The state Fish and Game Commission has designated three areas of California where night hunting with lights, generally outlawed under new legislation, will be permitted.

Meeting in San Francisco recently, the commission designated the northern Sacramento Valley and adjacent foothills and the south-eastern portion of the state as areas where lights will be allowed. There will be additional restrictions in some areas during deer seasons.

Commissioners are authorized under terms of Senate Bill 611, which became effective Jan. 1, to permit the use of lights in the taking of furbearing and nongame animals where appropriate.

The ban had been on lights except for two-cell, three-volt flashlights and smaller lights.

The commission, however, amended this section Friday to provide that three-cell flashlights could be used throughout most of the state by night hunters with dogs to hunt raccoon, bobcat and fox only. The purpose of allowing the brighter flashlight was to make night hunting safer, according to the commission.

An added provision was that hunters using lights may be no closer than 100 feet to any vehicle. Lights must be worn on the head or hand-held, and must have a self-contained power source, and may not be connected to a battery in the vehicle.

Department of Fish and Game Director E. C. Fulton, who recommended the three areas where lights would be permitted, said that although recognizing the legitimate desire of individuals to hunt at night with lights, the DFG believes that such hunting should be prohibited in areas with large game populations, particularly deer, or in areas where threatened or endangered species might be affected.

The main purpose of the law prohibiting the use of lights in hunting was to assist game wardens in apprehending deer poachers.

In other action, the commission postponed consideration of a request by the Fishermen's Cooperative Association to increase the 100,000-ton anchovy reduction quota for the southern area and to adopt a split season for the anchovy fishery in that area.

Commissioners ordered the publication of notice of their intention to establish the Carrizo Canyon Ecological Reserve in Riverside County and to adopt regulations for its use.

One of the most important bighorn sheep watering sources in the Santa Rosa Mountains, the reserve would consist of 1,078 acres on the desert slope of the mountains above Rancho Mirage and Palm Desert.

Women's Albany Bowl basketball

ALBANY — The Albany Park and Recreation Department announced today sign ups for "Women's Basketball."

Women 14 years of age and over may sign up for basketball at the Albany Community Center Gym on Monday, Feb. 6 and 13, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. There will be free play and instruction in basic fundamentals on both evenings.

Grizzly Isle rabbit hunt

SACRAMENTO — The Department of Fish and Game has announced that the annual rabbit hunt at Grizzly Island in the Suisun Marsh, usually scheduled in January, has been postponed until fall.

The DFG said the hunt would be held during the pheasant season in the fall, permitting hunters to bag both rabbits and pheasants on certain days. Further information will be published prior to the fall hunting season.

Ochoa maintains Full House lead

By PHIL ALSTON

ALBANY — Al Ochoa continued to score impressively in the 905 Major League at Albany Bowl, firing 670 series to help keep his Full House team on top of the league standings with a 15-10 decision over Diablo Bowling Supply.

By posting games of 245-224-201, Ochoa raised his average to 201 and he needed every stick to surpass George Schaber, who shot 650 for Diablo.

Larry MacCaughy, replacing Scooter Travis in the Solano Club lineup, got off on the right foot with a 660 cluster.

He had strong backing from Roger Carlson's 614 and Bob Mann's 606 as Solano prevailed over Acme Printing Ink, 15-10.

Golden Gate Fields mauled Team Six 20-5 behind Gary Kidd's 652 and 632 by Ray Felix, while Randy Felix's 624 was helping O&R Vending 17-8 over J. D.'s Raiders.

Rogue Layson, bowling in the Graphic Arts League, turned in the week's best total by firing games of 227-214-246 for 687.

Mike Reed shot 627 and Roger Carlson 614 as D&M Body Shop maintained its dominance of the 870 Commercial circuit.

Caren Parks, with 580 in the Commercial, was the leading femme performer. She was pressed for honors by Albertha Stoudemire, who had 572 in the Majorettes, Ann Tofanelli, 566 and Karolina Larson, 560, both in the Wednesday Morning Swingers League.

Darryl Jim made his elders in the Junior-Senior Fours circuit take notice with all three games over 200 in a 639 series.

Tom Kaya fashioned a 630 set and Gish Endo 615 to lead the Nisei Scratch. Rich Miller gave Thursday Sleepers a 615.

Political Notes

Andy Heffernon, Albany City Council candidate, will hold an Open House to meet the voters at 824 San Carlos Ave. Friday evening. Everyone interested in Albany's future will be welcome to meet with Andy and talk with him about any issue of particular concern.

Heffernon has taken out papers for the April 7 election and plans to file officially well before the deadline.

Running as an independent, Heffernon believes that by "establishing long-range priorities for city government, Albany can move with the times and still maintain the high quality of life that its citizens have long enjoyed."

Lou George is inviting Albany residents to join him Friday evening, at 7:30 p.m., in Jo Burn's home at 872 Hillside Ave., in a get-together at which Albany's future will be discussed.

Second Little League registration scheduled

ALBANY — Albany Little League President Larry Eaton today announced a second "sign-up" night. The registration will be held in the Marin School multi-purpose room from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday "for those players who missed the sign-up last week."

Boys and girls ages 8 (including 7 year olds who will be 8 by July 31, 1978) through 15 are eligible. Players must live in Albany as league regulations specifically exclude students attending Albany schools but who live in other cities. Returning players who have moved since joining Albany Little League may continue to play in Albany, however.

Eaton also announced that tryouts for the Minor and Major Leagues will be held on Feb. 25 at University Village fields. This try out is for all new players, ages 8 through 12, and for all former Minor League players ages 10 through 12. Tryouts for the Senior League will be held at Memorial Park on April 1.

For more information, prospective Little Leaguers may call Player Agent Edward Wong, or assistant agent Jeff Wong at 527-2097.
